CLAIM OFFICER WAS IN "JOY PARTY" AT BIG LOCAL BREWERY

JOHN WENDLING UP BEFORE THE BOARD ON FRIDAY EVENING

Sergeant of Police Defendant in Case Brought by President and Secretary of Police Board

TANGOED ON MALT HOUSE FLOOR

It Is Alleged He Took Them Home from Dance in Auto and They Did Dance at Michel's

WOODWARD'S RULING REVERSED

Late Head of Board Claimed It Could Not Take Initiative but Members Sign the Charges

John Wendling, night sergeant of the La Crosse police, will be tried tomorrow night before the police and fire commission on a charge of being a member of a party which drank beer and tangoed at the Michel brewery early on the morning of January 16.

The complaint is signed by John E. Langdon, president of the police and fire commission and L. C. Colman, the secretary.

The action of President Langdon in signing the complaint is a reversal of the ruling of the late G. M. Woodward to the effect that the commission has no power of initiative.

Mr. Langdon's activity suggests that the hearing means the revival of the old police fight which started when Mayor Ori J. Sorensen undertook to personally assign the "night shift" on the ground that as selected by Chief Webber it was inefficient. If the Wendling charges are sustained the fact may be pointed to by the chief's enemies as corroborating the mayor's assertion.

Complainant Unknown

Attempts today to learn who was the original complainant proved futile. It was learned that Mr. Langdon, the president of the commission, has been investigating and that the complaint, at this late date, is the result of his detective work.

The charges, it is claimed, are the outgrowth of what was originally an innocent little party in which the sergeant of police—through efforts to be a "good fellow"—has been made the defendant.

On the night of the alleged "boistrous conduct," it is said, Sergeant Wendling was returning from the north side, where he had been on official business, with the police car. At Fourth and Main streets, soon after midnight, he encountered three couples, two of which were married and the other unmarried.

Taking Them Home

"Take us home, John," asked one of the married men, prominent and well acquainted with the sergeant.

"Jump in," said Wendling.

"We're on the way to my house," said one of the married couples, "to have a little lunch. I wonder if we could get a picnic of beer anywhere?" he queried.

Assured by the sergeant that all places were closed one of the party suggested that they stop at the Michel brewery where a "keg" is constantly on tap for the night employes.

Met Patrolman Ritter

This was done and when the party entered the brewery they met Patrolman Ritter. Ritter, it is alleged, stayed a few minutes, the members of the party passed a tin cup around once or twice and then went home.

The next heard or the affair was when subpoenas were served upon Patrolman Ritter and Sergeant Wendling to appear and testify before the commission tomorrow.

Police Chief John B. Webber knew absolutely nothing of the affair until after the complaint was signed and the subpoenas issued. He was not asked by members of the commission or whoever "tipped" the commission to the affair to investigate. He was kept in ignorance until the case was worked up by the president of the commission.

People Are Prominent

Friends of Sergeant Wendling are loath to believe that he was implicated in a "joy party" such as the complaint would indicate occurred, and are firm in their declarations that, if he is guilty of anything, it is nothing more than a mere indiscretion in stopping at a brewery to share the workmen's draught.

The story upon which the charges are based is that while at the brew-

AUTO PLUNGES OFF ROAD KILLING ONE AND INJURING ONE

Charles Lund Is Victim of "Joyride" that Ends in Ditch Near French Island Early Today

OWNER OF THE CAR IS ARRESTED

Louis Ormson Shows Fight After Rescue; Christianson's Shoulder Is Broken

LA CROSSE MEN DISCOVER THE CAR

Returning from Taking Customer Home Find Machine in Ditch; Drag Men from Under

One man dead, one man is seriously injured and in the hospital and a third is in the police station, the result of a "joy ride" that ended at 1:30 o'clock this morning, when their car plunged over the embankment along the narrow road between French Island and North La Crosse.

The dead

Charles Lund, 1201 Kane street, foreman of the grinding room at the La Crosse Plow company.

The injured:

John Christianson, 1413 Caledonia street.

Arrested:

Louis Ormson, taxi owner, 616 St. Cloud street.

The party, according to the police report, had been making "a night of it" at the various resorts in La Crosse county. The road houses on French Island attracted them and they journeyed there.

Ormson, it is alleged, was the driver and owner of the car, an old model Cadillac. They left one of the resorts on French Island to return to La Crosse. Against the warnings of others they started across the narrow road leading from the island to the north side.

Ormson was behind the steering wheel and Christiansen and Lund were in the tonneau.

Found by Local Men

Soon after they left the island two La Crosse men, returning from Rice Lake, where they had taken a prospective customer, were attracted by lights at the foot of the embankment to the right of the roadway and just west of the main Black river bridge. They slowed their machine and found an overturned auto with the gas lights burning.

They immediately stopped and found the three men pinioned beneath the machine. While one hurried to the nearest telephone to summon physicians and aid from the city, the other started the work of dragging the men from beneath the machine.

Ormson was the first pulled out and, says the police report, "was good and drunk."

Dead When Pulled Out

Christiansen was the next and his shoulderblade was broken. The next to be dragged out was Lund. A cursory examination by County Physician R. H. Flynn, who in the meantime had arrived in the police auto, showed him to be dead. His neck was broken.

Ormson, claim the police, seemed not to realize the seriousness of the affair and defied attempts of the physician to examine him to determine whether or not he was injured. He offered to "lick the crowd." He was arrested and taken to police station No. 2 on the north side. He is being held there today.

Christianson was immediately rushed to St. Francis hospital and Coroner Herman Langstadt was called to render his opinion on Lund's death.

Might Have Burned

That all three of the men were not burned to death is miraculous, according to a description of the affair.

"We were returning from Rice Lake, where we had taken a prospective customer, a man with whom we had spent the afternoon and evening," said a witness. "As we turned off the island to take the road we noticed what appeared to be two small fires at the foot of the embankment. We thought tramps were camping there. As we neared the spot we slowed down and then the chassis of an auto became visible. We stopped immediately and made an examination. We found all three under the machine. A friend immediately went to summon aid and I did my best to get the machine off the men. I succeeded in raising it enough to get Christianson out.

RESUME CAMPAIGN AGAINST TAMPICO VILLA IN FIELD

Conference Between Carranza and Villa Ends and the General Starts for Monterey

WILL CAPTURE SALTILLO FIRST

From That Point Constitutionalists Plan to Give Themselves Outlet to the Sea

CAN GET ARMS DESPITE EMBARGO

If They Capture Tampico They Will Have Port of Entry for Shipping Cotton and Getting Guns

BY N. C. PARKE
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

EL PASO, Texas, April 30.—General Francisco Villa's campaign to sweep General Huerta's forces from northern Mexico will not be halted pending mediation proceedings.

General Venustiano Carranza will not consider a proposal for an armistice between his troops and those of General Huerta.

This statement was made to the United Press today on a high authority at constitutionalist headquarters in Juarez.

Won't Let Federals Gather

"Villa will begin his campaign again against Saltillo immediately," said the United Press informant. "It would be the height of folly for him to permit the fedearl forces in northern Mexico—numbering 15,000—to concentrate at Saltillo during an armistice."

Twenty American and foreign refugees reached here from the interior of Mexico today. It is now estimated that not more than 25 Americans are still in northern Mexico.

News of the departure of General Francisco Villa for the south surprised constitutionalist officials in Juarez today. Many conjectures are made as to the cause of the hasty departure. The surprise was added to when it became known that Colonel Eusebio Calzaro, general manager of the constitutionalist railway lines, had suddenly left Juarez in response to a peremptory order from Villa to reach the scene of military activity at the earliest possible moment, prepared to move troops from Torreon southward.

Want a Port

It is believed the constitutionalist activity is due to a desire to take advantage of the demoralization of Huertistas, to occupy Saltillo and then move on Tampico with a view of capturing it and making it a constitutionalist port of entry through which to procure arms. Through such a port cotton could be shipped to Europe without taking chances on injunctions and seizures on shipments made through the United States from El Paso.

Move on Tampico

WASHINGTON, April 30. — The victorious constitutionalists forces which last week drove the Mexican federals out of Monterey, are now moving to join in the attack on Tampico. They are taking with them a number of pieces of artillery, lack of which has prevented any serious inroads into the federal position at the port.

The news of this latest movement of the constitutionalist army was received at the navy department early today in a dispatch from Admiral Badger. He reported that the American consul at Tampico, who has been on Admiral Mayo's flagship for several days, has gone ashore, under guarantee of safety from the federal commander, to settle up the affairs of his consulate, which he is turning over to the British consul.

The American consular agent at Tuxpam has taken refuge on the British steamer Waneta and is proceeding to Galveston.

Word was received here today from Eau Claire, that the county board of that place, by a two-thirds vote, adopted the Dunn coupon ballot this morning. The vote was taken under suspension of the rules, according to the dispatch to La Crosse.

NO RESIGNATION HUERTA'S STAND UPON MEDIATION

Message to Shepherd from Foreign Secretary Bojas Shows Where Dictator Stands

MAY RUN BUT WON'T RESIGN

Wants Settlement with U. S. Which Will Be Acceptable to Dignity of His Government

U. S. MAY PAY MEXICAN DEBTS

Having Seized the Custom House We May Have to Pay Interest on Bonds

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD

(Copyright, 1914, by United Press.)

VERA CRUZ, April 30.—Mexico's agreement to mediation is not without reservation. Dictator Huerta has not made up his mind as to how far he is willing to go toward bringing about peace and the matter of resigning has apparently not been considered by him.

This situation in the Mexican capital was clearly indicated today in a message which I received from Lopez Portillo y Rojas, secretary of foreign affairs.

Only Principle Acceptable

That mediation is acceptable to Mexico in principle only is the keynote of this message, which carries the inference that Huerta has not considered resigning.

"Up to now mediation is acceptable to Mexico in principle only," Rojas' message stated. "As soon as details of mediation to which Mexico is willing to agree, are decided on, I will be in a better position to make a statement. I hope mediation will bring a solution acceptable to the dignity of both governments."

Just what satisfying the dignity of Mexican government in negotiations of this sort carries with it is obvious. Huerta is the Mexican government, or at least that part against which the operations of the United States have been directed.

Think He Will Stick

The dictator may take refuge in flight when his last bluff has lost its effect, or when rebel or American troops are pounding at the very gates of Mexico City, but those who have observed him throughout the stormy months of his regime do not expect him to resign. If that is one of the conditions of mediation laid down by the United States, there appears to be but slight hope of success.

It was rumored here today that the seizure of Vera Cruz may make the United States responsible for the payment of $12,000,000 quarterly, representing the interest on Mexican bonds. Sixty per cent of the customs receipts at this port have been laid aside by contract for the purpose of the next payment of interest due in August. As no customs duties are now paid owing to the blockade, nothing is being collected toward the payment of the interest on bonds. The possibility of such a complication is increased by the fact that European bondholders must be satisfied and must go on the interest-paying roll of the United States, under the present occupation plan.

FIND FIVE BODIES IN WRECKED MINE

Victims Piled in Heap at Bottom of the Shaft Dead of Suffocation

ECCLES, W. Va., April 30.—Rescuers penetrated to the bottom of Mine No. 5 of the New River Colleries company today and found five bodies. The victims were piled in a heap—dead from suffocation. Wading in water knee deep in places the rescuers then began to explore all portions of the mine in an effort to find others of the 172 victims of Tuesday's explosion. The searchers carried canary birds in cages as gas barometers and plied axes to cut their way as they proceeded.

Funerals were to be held today for eight victims of the explosion in Mine No. 6.

Just a glimmer of hope that some of the 172 entombed may be alive was held out today by Dr. J. A. Holmes of Washington, director of the United States bureau of mines, who is directing the rescue work. He was almost alone in this belief, however. He cited that living men were taken several years ago from the Cherry, Ill., mine after eight days' entombment.

Widows and orphans of the disaster crowded about the shaft again today refusing to give up hope. A large force of deputies was sworn in by Sheriff Thompson to hold them back when bodies are brought to the surface.

ALLEGED GANG OF CAR THIEVES RUN TO EARTH HERE

Arrest of George Alcorn and Woman Yesterday Followed by Two More Arrests Today

MORE THAN A DOZEN IMPLICATED

Biggest Gang Car Robbers that Ever Operated Here Is Statement of Police Chief

WILL HAVE OTHERS IN SHORT TIME

Expect Arrest of Another Woman Shortly; She Is Wanted by Authorities as Witness

One of the biggest series of wholesale arrests ever made in La Crosse is expected as the result of a systematic campaign on the part of a crew of railroad detectives and the police to unearth a gang of railroad thieves who have been plundering cars on the Milwaukee and Burlington railroad for the last year. Four persons alleged to belong to the gang are now in jail and the authorities believe that more than a dozen will be placed under arrest.

That the gang is the largest that ever operated here in connection with railroad robberies is the declaration of Chief of Police John Webber today.

Four Arrested

The list of arrests to date is as follows: George Alcorn, "the hermit of Stony Point;" Nellie Prill, (Chi) Leon Simpson and John Nagle.

Alcorn and Nellie Prill were arrested at the hut of Alcorn on an island in the Mississippi yesterday morning. Simpson and John Nagle, who reside at 625 Mill street, were placed under arrest last night.

The detectives of both railroad and the city police department are today tightening their nets about other members of the gang whom they expect to place under arrest within the next twenty-four hours.

Arraign Two

George Alcorn and John Nagle were arraigned in county court this morning for preliminary hearing, charged with receiving stolen goods. The detectives in their complaint, claimed that eighteen sacks of flour had been found in Alcorn's cabin when it was searched. Nagle is charged with being a party to the same offense.

The property mentioned is valued at $36 which makes the crime a state prison offense. Both men entered pleas of not guilty and adjournment was taken until Wednesday, upon consent of Attorney Frank Withrow, representing Alcorn and Nagle.

Attempts to Raise Bail

An attempt is being made to furnish $500 bonds necessary for the release of Alcorn, this afternoon.

Nellie Prill and Simpson are still being held at the city police station. The arrest of another woman, a friend of Simpson and Nagle, as one of the important witnesses, is expected this afternoon.

Morgan will give his first sermon at New Amsterdam Sunday.

First Bride of Stock Company Man Declares She Has No Intention of Quitting Case

"I'm going to stay right here in La Crosse and see this case through to the finish. If my husband thinks his hair has turned gray over what he terms 'this miserable affair,' what color do you think mine should be after his desertion and the strain of supporting myself and child."

This was the declaration today of Mrs. J. Everett White No. 1, who yesterday charged her husband with committing bigamy when he married Miss Leona Kelleger, daughter of the mayor of Dwight, Ill.

Wife No. 1 today declared that she signed the complaint late Tuesday afternoon and denies that she "tipped" her husband to the fact that a warrant was out.

White is still in jail awaiting the return to the city of his attorney.

Strikers Kill Guards and Burn Mine Buildings at Forbes Shaft for Vengeance

TRINIDAD, Col., April 30.—That Louis Tikas, leader of the Ludlow tent colony of miners, was slain in the battle there ten days ago, while a military prisoner, was the statement made by militiamen at the coroner's inquest in progress here.

Sergeant Mills, Corporal Mason and Sergeant Cullen testified that Tikas was their prisoner and had been threatened with lynching by un-uniformed guards. They tried to protect him, they said, but after the fighting with strikers they found Tikas dead, they said, with three bullet wounds and his head crushed.

Lieut. K. E. Linderfelt and Major Patrick Hamrock swore the militia did not begin the Ludlow shooting. Frank Bayes, a ranches, testified he saw militiamen set fire to the tents of the Ludlow colony. He also asserted that mine guards had shelled his ranch, near Ludlow, where women and children were refuged. He found this note signed "Baldwin-Felts" and "C. N. G."

"This is to pay for helping strikers. Cut it out or we will call again."

BY J. H. FURAY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DENVER, Col., April 30. — At Forbes nine dead, six wounded; at Walsenburg five known dead, three wounded, three more may be dead.

Colorado stood aghast today, in contemplation of this bloody summary of the human havoc wrought within the past twenty-four hours by its own citizens, fighting each other to death in the coal strike zone of southern Colorado.

As a result of a day of battling, Forbes coal camp of the Rocky Mountain fuel, north of Trinidad, is today a smoking ruin and militiamen and strikers at Walsenburg are resting under an armed truce, awaiting the arrival of United States cavalry to take command of the situation.

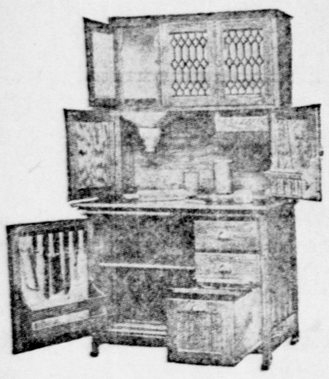

Troops Prevent More War

That only the coming of federal soldiers prevented still greater carnage none now doubts. Strikers, militia and mine guards, throughout southern Colorado are in a state of high excitement but the counsel of their leaders prevents them from flying at each others throats and renewing the fighting. The second squadron of the United States cavalry, Major William A. Holbrook commanding, was due in Trinidad by noon. As soon as it arrives two troops will be sent to Walsenburg to restore peace and order and relieve the militia at that camp. Whether the strikers there will be peaceably disarmed remains to be seen. Their leaders have promised that they will turn over their weapons to the federal troops and to none others. Acting under the proclamation issued by President Wilson called out the government soldiers, demanding the surrender of arms, Major Holbrook will demand that the strikers keep their promise.

This is one feature that has been especially agreeable to us, since we have come to know that they are among the most refined and cultured classes of this community That we have been able to render them a service, and provide them with a means of enjoyment that will last for years, is also a matter of cogratulation to ourselves. We have only one regret, and that is, that we are unable to renew our contract for more "Heart Songs." Unless we are greatly mistaken, the number on hand will barely satisfy the coupons yet to be presented. These later are printed each day in the paper and our office is thronged with the crowds seeking the book. with the crowds seeking the book—which is really a master-work of song-music.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

AN HONORARY MEMBER

By HARMONY WHEELER

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Business was for the moment suspended in the club room of the Woman's Political Association. All members were grouped about a tiny bundle that had been picked up on the streets and which had been carried in for care in the nursery maintained by the association.

The child in the bundle had been wailing loudly until Mrs. Cecelie Staunton had cuddled it warmly in her arms and crooned gently to it.

"Who could desert a child like this?" she questioned her sister members. "She is the most adorable baby I ever saw. Just look at that rosebud mouth."

"And did you ever see such blue, blue eyes? Do let me hold her a while," pleaded Alice Hatch.

"No. I am going to keep this baby for my own. If no one comes to claim her—she shall be my child." Cecelie Staunton gazed wonderingly down at the little deserted baby and large tears filled her eyes. Perhaps she was wondering why some people who did not appreciate them were given children.

"If you keep that baby," declared the president of the association, "it will be all baby and no more work for the cause." She laughed quickly "I would have more time than you—to care for a child—let me have her."

"I have more leisure than any of you," chimed in Alice Hatch. "Please give her to me." She approached Mrs. Staunton, her arms hungry for the bundle lying so peacefully in the other woman's embrace.

"No one is going to have this child save myself if its parents do not come to claim it!" She held her charge defiantly and the defeated members of the suffrage body took their loss with jealous smiles. "She will be made an honorary member of the association, and when she grows up she will know all there is to know regarding woman's sphere in this life."

The women, all unconscious of a frantic father's search for his treasured baby, continued to worship at the feet of the youngest member of the Political Association.

The distracted parent went to police headquarters, but it availed him nothing. The child had not been reported and there seemed nothing left to do but advertise and make a systematic search through orphanages and homes.

The seventh day after the child's disappearance found Frank Dempster at the door of the Woman's Political Association nursery.

The number of suffragists he had to face would have made him quail had he been less frantic over the loss of the girl baby.

It was Alice Hatch who relieved the father's anxious mind. She told him of the finding of the baby and its present home with Mrs. Staunton.

"We all wanted to keep the baby," she added, as he went swiftly away to the address of Cecelie Staunton. Anxiety had drawn fine lines about his face and taken the red from his cheeks.

"I am sorry for Cecelie," muttered a suffragist, who had three children of her own. "She will not get over the loss of that darling baby in a hurry."

"It will break her all up," Alice Hatch said, and realized that they would all miss cuddling the honorary member. Her visits to the clubrooms had been daily. Mrs Staunton had been generous with her adopted baby.

When Frank Dempster reached the great house in which he knew his baby was being cared for he drew a breath of relief.

The members had telephoned to Mrs. Staunton so as to soften the blow as much as possible. Even so, she was frightfully emotional when she came down to face the father of wee Mary, as the club had named the baby.

"It does not seem possible that I am to lose that treasure," she said, when she had seen the father sweep his baby close within his arms and hold her there.

"It was a nurse who left her in the streets," he explained, when he was able to use his voice steadily. "Can you picture all the horror I have gone through since the night my nurse and baby did not return home?"

"I think I can—in a measure," responded Mrs. Staunton. Then, in order to change the subject from the gratitude he was trying to express to her for her care of his baby, she said laughingly: "Every woman at the headquarters wanted to keep her—but I defied them all—and now—I have to give her up."

Frank Dempster gazed wonderingly back at the woman who so willingly had taken added burden to her shoulders.

"I did not know the advanced woman was so attached to children," he told her.

Cecelie laughed softly. "I think we women who are working for the betterment of humanity should know more about children and their care than the feather-brained woman who cares nothing for advancement."

"I wish," said Dempster, looking into Mrs. Staunton's wide, intelligent eyes, "that my baby might be brought up under such a woman's guidance—such a woman as you."

He did not realize that his voice had trembled slightly.

"Her mother?" Mrs. Staunton questioned. "Is she——"

"My baby is motherless." Dempster said softly. "She did not know one single moment of the blessedness of maternal arms."

"Oh! I'm so sorry!" cried the woman quickly, then as quickly she smiled, for wee Mary had gurgled delightedly just at nothing at all. "Could any one help smiling with that billikins about?" she laughed and took the baby back into her arms.

Dempster stood looking quietly at her and it gradually dawned on him that there was no hint of color about Mrs. Staunton's garments. He looked about the room for signs of masculine habitation, but there was nothing there—not even an ash tray.

"Have you no children of your own?" he questioned.

"No," she replied. "I lost my husband very shortly after our marriage. I took up suffrage—in the first place—because my life was so empty and incomplete. Now I realize that women have time for progression as well as for taking care of a family. But——"she sighed unconsciously. "I have no family to take care of."

Because of an intangible something that was drawing Dempster nearer to the woman in whose tender arms his baby rested, he laughed boyishly. The lines had disappeared from his face and the color was returning to his cheeks. His eyes, with a new light in them, rested on his merry little girl baby.

"What's the yellow ribbon for?" he questioned, catching sight of the bow on the baby's wrist.

Mrs. Staunton blushed prettily. "Your daughter is the only honorary member in our club. Yellow is our color, you know."

Dempster laughed heartily and Cecelie joined him.

"No. I did not know it; but there are a good many things we mere men have to learn."

He rose to go. The color flew from Mrs. Staunton's face.

"I cannot bear to let Wee Mary go," she cried, holding the baby fast. Please let me have the bringing up of her!"

There was a moment's silence.

"Can I stop in and see her every morning on my way to business and every evening on my way home—if I leave her with you?" he questioned, and very near to Mrs. Staunton—so close that he knew there was the scent of the lotus flower in her hair. He did not quite realize that his muscles were all tense, and that his eyes were not questioning, but pleading.

Cecelie laughed softly and the color mounted high in her cheeks.

"If you have time at lunch also—you may stop in," she told him.

Down at the Woman's Political Association Alice Hatch spoke to the members.

"I would not be one bit surprised if they fell in love with each other. He could not help loving Cecelie and—well, I almost fell in love with him myself."

"It was love—from the begining," admitted Cecelie to Dempster when they were treading the path of life together.

The honorary member crowed delightedly.

Willing to Help.

"Mr. Editor, we are trying to start a movement to establish a home for disabled poets." "Fine," said the editor. "There is a whole bunch of poets in this town that I will disable as soon as you are ready for them."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Throw Away Your Eye-Glasses

A FREE PRESCRIPTION

You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye-weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing, say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Optona. Fill a two ounce bottle with warm water, drop in one Optona tablet and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

The Fairy Queen Is Queen of the May.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Jolly Fairies Give Their Yearly Spring Frolic.

JACK and Evelyn loved to hear about the fairies. It suddenly dawned on daddy that he hadn't told the children a story about the elves for ever and ever so long. So he said:

"How about a story of the fairies tonight, children?"

"Oh, splendid!" shouted both the children.

"You know I haven't told you yet about their spring frolic. Once every year at just about this time the fairies have what they call a spring frolic. This year they had it the night before last.

"For days before this frolic the fairies had gone flower hunting, and, of course, they found quantities of them. So of every kind there was some specimen, and they knew just how to arrange these flowers. They put them all over the fresh green grass, and here and there they scattered young green ferns. It made the grass look like a soft carpet of all the prettiest colors in the world. Then all was ready for the party.

"And now the fun began. First of all, they had the May pole dance."

"It must be perfectly wonderful!" said Evelyn thoughtfully. "I can just think of all those lovely wild flowers which they gathered with the moon shining down over them and then all the exquisite fairies dancing around the May pole!"

"Yes; it is very beautiful, I fancy," daddy agreed. "But, to continue, the May pole dance is simply one of the many delightful things about their spring frolic. After the dance is over, when, of course, the fairy queen is proclaimed queen of the May, the sports begin.

"You see, every one feels just like exercise after such fine weather, and they have all kinds of races and games. Last of all comes the frolic."

"Is that a special game?" asked Jack. "I thought that you just meant the whole party was a frolic and because it was given in the spring it was called a spring frolic."

"Well, of course," said daddy, "the whole party is a real spring frolic. But they do have a special frolic before the party is over, and that consists of races and hurdle jumping.

"They have small hurdles placed every little distance on the race track. The race track is covered with flowers, and the hurdles are always covered with flowers also, and then all the fairies run and jump over this course, while the fairies who are not racing at the time sing jolly songs to help them hurry.

"The fairy who wins this race has the honor of leading the May pole dance for the following spring frolic, and after the whole party is over the fairy queen presents each little fairy with a lovely crown of flowers."

AN ANALYSIS OF STALWARTISM

Political campaigns are necessary evils the embarrassments of which are felt more keenly by newspapermen than by any other class, for the reason that the editor must publicly utter opinions certain to create resentment, while the average citizen may hide his convictions in the secrecy of the ballot.

We are entering another campaign in which The Tribune finds itself called upon to oppose what is known as the "stalwart" or "conservative" element in both the old political parties. Among these men are many whom we enjoy as personal friends, others whom we know less intimately, whom nevertheless we admire for their attainments and value for acts of citizenship evidencing civic pride and generosity. Therefore, at the outset of the campaign, The Tribune takes this occasion of guarding against misinterpretation of anything that may be said in these columns, by analyzing "stalwartism" as we understand it.

The term "stalwart," while of political coinage, marks class rather than political lines. The constitution of this republican government assumes to have established equality, but let there be no delusions. We have class lines in the United States just as the people of every other nation have them, always have had and always will have them.

Because it is inevitable, we accept the class distinction and have no quarrel with it so far as it exists as a social line of demarcation. Further, we recognize its privilege to hold and defend political convictions. But believing that the centuries-long movement which gradually has been taking control of government from the aristocracy and investing it in the rank and file is right, we assume on our own part an equal right to oppose the exercise by class of a preponderance of political authority out of proportion to its numerical strength.

In every community the stalwart organization has a conventional formation. First, there are the leaders of wealth and culture; second in rank are brainy agents whose intelligence and efficiency are their passport into the most exclusive social set; third, there are the political workers whom the leaders admit to no social equality, but with whom they associate with a certain aloofness during times of political activity.

The stalwart leader, as a type, is wealthy and wears a refinement cultivated by the privileges and atmosphere which wealth provides. He avoids the expressive slang of the crowd. He resents vulgarity. His toilet is immaculate. His clothing is made and worn with a distinguishment that is subtle, indefinable, but which never escapes the consciousness of workaday people. He has no patience with the coarser things of the arduous life, because he does not understand them. If he entertains generous purposes toward his less fortunate fellow men, it is for the mass, not the individual. He can no more entertain sympathetic comprehension of those without his exclusive environment than a fish can live out of water. His intendment of honesty is fully up to the average of men. Precedent and practice of generations have sanctioned that use of money in politics which the plain people of late have brought into disrepute, and justifying the means from a viewpoint similar to that adopted by Mr. Roosevelt when the latter felt obliged to seize the Panama canal site, and to permit a steel trust merger in violation of law, he uses it as he dares without conscious impropriety. In business he is ethical, in society he is honorable. He is the monarchial nobility, transplanted without title. He is part of a concrete aggregation of individuals having a common environment, moved by a common impulse, entertaining common beliefs—all separated and distinguished from the great bulk of the public by a chasm of circumstances which his own aloofness and the shyness of the mass make doubly wide. He's a good fellow—in his set—entertaining, considerate, manly.

The stalwart leader is very much what the average poor man would be in the same circumstances. We believe this, absolutely. That is the reason we wish it distinctly understood that in opposing and criticising his political plans The Tribune does not question the quality of his manhood and citizenship.

The Tribune's position is that it is illogical for these men, who hold the "common herd" at arms length socially, to ask them to step across the chasms and join them in their politics. The question for every man to decide, as a basis for accepting or declining stalwart leadership, is whether he and this exclusive wealthy class have anything in common, whether the plain man can afford to re-establish the government of the moneyed aristocracy—indeed, whether the average voter and taxpayer can afford to make common cause with organized wealth, even in support of a plausible issue.

"What with the war on Mexico and the war on business," begins The Sentinel. By "war on business" the paper no doubt means the strike of the Colorado miners.

FOUR BURN

PORTLAND, Ore., April 30.—Four unidentified bodies were taken early today from the ruins of several frame buildings which burned here last night. The debris is being explored for other bodies.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Appearances

The gun that isn't loaded is the one that does the harm;
The mule that looks the sleepiest,
at kicking can't be beat;
The gal that looks the homeliest kin
keep house like a charm;
The steak that looks the tenderest is always hard to eat.

The man that talks the slickest is the slowest to deliver;
The man who doesn't talk at all is right there with the goods;
The man who talks philanthropy is not the cheerful giver;
The man who boasts of bravery is quickest to the woods.

The loudest prayin' deacon is the poorest one to trust;
The softest-talkin' married folks
are quickest to divorce;
The fastest goin' friendship is the quickest fer to bust;
The smallest lookin' copper is the bravest on the force.

The feller with the silk hat hasn't got the biggest pile;
The steadiest of housemaids ain't
the fairest fer to see.
Don't bank upon a feller who has always got a smile,
Appearances ain't always what they're cracked up to be.

A Dark Deed

Wife (entering room wringing her hands, with an expression of extreme agony)—Now I have done it. But it serves me right for not turning on the light. I might have known I would make a mistake.

Husband (who is reading the papers)—Great guns! What have you done? Taken bichloride?

Wife—Bichloride? No. I've put a two-cent stamp on a postcard.—Columbia Jester.

What The Audience Wanted

With hisses and groans the audience greeted the new musical comedy. All hope, then, was at an end.

"It's hard to tell just what the public wants!" murmured the heart-broken author.

"It's easy enough to tell in this case," said the manager, grimly. "It wants its money back!"

Names That Fit

A plumber named Leads has contributed to the gaiety of the law courts, and the name seems to fit the occupation. It is frequently so in the names that crop up in the papers. A few noted are given in the London Chronicle: A fisherman named Scales, an accountant who figures as Cash, a grave digger named Mould. But sometimes the effect is contrary. A Mrs. New would hardly be expected to travel in old clothes, and a police constable, of all folks, should not be Lawless. And there was once a physician whose practice dwindled into nothingness. For how could you feel any hopes of getting well of a Graveyard?

No Need to Worry

Distressed Damsel!—Oh, sir; catch that man. He wanted to kiss me.

Passive Pedestrian—That's all right. There'll be another along in a minute.—Purple Cow.

Advice to Husbands

When she makes a hat, admire it, even though it looks like a Welsh rarebit nightmare. It will save you a lot of money in the long run.

When you are out late, you may as well tell her the truth, she won't believe it anyhow.

Don't be grouchy about her allowance, even if it runs up as high as twenty-five cents a week.

Eat what she cooks and keep your mouth shut. If you keep your mouth shut you can't eat very much, so it won't hurt you.

If she wants to paint the furniture over every week and put the pianola in the kitchen, let her do it, for she will do it anyhow, whether you let her or not.

If she won't let you smoke in the house, so much better. Smoking doesn't do you any good, anyhow.

When she hears burglars in the cellar, hop right out of bed and go and look for them. You needn't be scared, there won't be any burglars there, and if there should be they will probably shoot you and you will never have to hop out of bed to look for any more burglars.

If she wants the bedroom window down and you want it up, put it down, for you won't get any sleep if you don't

Neither of them heard the faint gasp which came from behind the portieres dividing the study and the living-room. The gasp had followed the invisible knife-thrusts of these confidences. The woman behind those portieres swayed and caught blindly at the jamb. With cruel vividness she saw in this terrible moment all that to which she had never given more than a passing thought. No reproaches: only a simple declaration of what had burned in this boy's heart. And she had almost forgotten this son. A species of paralysis laid hold of her, leaving her for the time incapable of movement.

She heard the deep voice of this other son say: "Lots of kinks in life. There is only one law that I shall lay down for you, Arty. You must give up all idea of marrying Elsa Chetwood."

"It will be easy to obey that. Are you playing with me, Paul?"

"Playing?" echoed Warrington.

"Yes. Do you mean to sit there and tell me that you don't know why I shall never marry her?"

"Arty, I don't understand what you're talking about."

Arthur read the truth in his brother's eyes. He smiled weakly, the anger gone. "Same old blind duffer you always were. I wrote an answer to her letter I told her... the truth."

"You did that?"

"I am your brother, Paul. I could not be a cad as well as a thief. Yes, I told her. I told her more, what you ever knew. I let Craig believe that I was you, Paul. I wore your clothes, your scarfpins, your hats. In that I was a black villain. God! What a hell I lived in!....Ah, mother!" Arthur dropped his head upon his arms again.

"Paul, my son!"

It was Warrington's chair that toppled over. Framed in the portieres stood his mother, white-haired pale but as beautifull as of old.

"I am sorry. I had hoped to get away without your knowing."

"Why?"

"Oh, because there wasn't any use of my coming at all. I'd passed out of your life, and I should have stayed out. There's a train at midnight."

Arthur stood up. "Mother, I am the guilty man. I was the thief. All these years I've let you believe that Paul had taken the money.."

"Yes, yes!" she interrupted, never taking her eyes off this other son. "I heard everything behind these curtains. You were going away, Paul, without seeing me?"

"What was the use of stirring up old matters? Of bringing confusion into this house?" He did not look at her. He could not tell her that he now knew what had drawn him hither, that all along he had deceived himself.

"Paul, my son, I have been a wicked woman."

"Why, mother, you mustn't talk like that!"

"Wicked! My son, ml silent, kindly, chivalric boy, will you forgive your mother? Your unnatural mother?"

He caught her before her knees touched the floor; and, ah! how hungrily her arms wound about him.

"What's the use of lying?" he cried brokenly. "My mother! I wanted to hear your voice and feel your arms. You don't know how I have always loved you. It was a long time. Perhaps I was to be blamed. I was proud, and kept away from you. Don't cry. There, there! I can go away now, happy." Over his mother's shoulders, now moving with silent stabbing sobs, he held out his hand to his brother. Presently, above the two bowed heads, Warrington's own rose, transfigured with happiness.

The hall-door opened and closed, but none of them regarded it.

By and by the mother stood away, but within arm's length. "How big and strong you have grown, Paul."

"In heart, too, mother," added Arthur. 'Old Galahad!"

"You must never leave us again, Paul. Promise."

"May I always come back?"

"Always!" And she took his hand and pressed it tightly against her cheek. "Always! Ah, your poor blind mother!"

"Always to come back!....I am going to China in a little while, to take up the work I have always loved, the building of bridges."

"And I am going, too!" It was Elsa at her Journey's end.

Jealous love is keen of eye. There was death in Arthur's heart, but he smiled at her. After all, what was more logical than that she should appear at this moment? Why sip the cup when it might be drained at once, over with and done with?

"Elsa!" said the mother, holding Warrington's hand in closer grasp.

"Yes, mother. Ah, why did you not tell me all?"

Arthur walked to the long window that opened out upon the garden. There, for a moment, he paused, then passed from the room.

"Go to him, mother," said Elsa, wisely and with pity.

The mother hesitated, pulled by the old and the new love, by the fear that the new-found could be hers but a little while. Slowly she let Paul's hand fall, and slower still she followed Arthur's footsteps.

"I wasn't quite brave enough," he said, when she found him. "They love. And they love me well, mother, for I am the broken man."

She pressed his head against her reart. "My boy!" But her glance was leveled at the ambertinted window through which she had come.

To Warrington, Elsa was a little thinner, and of color there was none; but her eyes shone with all the splendor of the Oriental stars at which he had so often gazed with mute inquiry.

"Galahad!" she said, and smiled. "Well, what have you to say?"

"I? In God's name, what can I say but that I love you?"

"Well, say it, and stop the ache in my heart! Say it, and make me forget the weary eighteen thousand miles I have journeyed to find you! Say it, and hold me close for I am tired!.....Listen!" she whispered, lifting her head from his shoulder.

From out the stillness of the summer night came a jarring note, the eternal protest of Rajah.

THE END

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics.

Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

HEADLESS BODIES LIVE

NEW YORK, April 30.—A further development of the isolation of nerve centers was explained to members of the New York State Medical society by Dr. George Crile of Cleveland and the discovery today is greeted as an important aid to surgery. Dr. Crilt calls his new theory the kinetic system of internal organs, which covers the relationship between liver, muscles, brain and suprarenal and thyroid glands. Through blood transfusion Dr. Crile said he had conserved life for eleven hours in decapitated bodies of animals.

MORE TROOPS TO BORDER

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Further concentration of cavalry on the Mexican border was ordered today when an additional troop of the Tenth cavalry was shifted to Naco, Arizona, across the border from San Jose, Sonora. Two troops of the Tenth cavalry are now at Naco. Today's order was regarded in military circles solely as an answer to frenzled appeals from many Arizona quarters for more troops.

Men are hard to satisfy, yet what is more unsatisfactory than a satisfied man?

HIRT AUTO SHOP GOES IN FLAMES

Joseph Hirt Badly Burned Trying to Extinguish Sudden Flames in Garage

Fire yesterday afternoon almost totally destroyed the machine shops of Joseph Hirt, at 1607 George street. Two automobiles, besides the stock of tires and other rubber goods as well as tools and machinery are a total loss.

The fire started mysteriously about 5:30. Joseph Hirt was in the shop at the time. He was burned about the hands and face trying to extinguish the flames with a large tarpaulin. Inside of a minute the whole structure was ablaze, the flames shooting forty feet into the air.

"The quickest work that I have ever seen the fire department do," said Mr. Hirt this morning, "was done by No. 4 station. Within two minutes after I sent in the alarm, they had three streams of water playing on the fire, and before six o'clock the fire was out."

Mr. Hirt places his loss at $5,000, only one-fifth of which is covered by insurance. The machine shop, which was used as a repair shop for the Hirt taxi service, will be repaired and the business continued.

READY FOR OLD OPERA

TREAT FOR MUSIC LOVERS IN STORE WHEN "PIRATES OF PENZANCE" IS STAGED BY HIGH GLEE CLUB

The theater loving people of La Crosse will be given a real treat on Saturday evening, May 2, when the boys' and girls' glee clubs of the high school will present the two act comic opera entitled "Pirates of Penzance." The opera itself is not a new one but the clever plot with the catchy solos and choruses and drills have established a permanency for it. The work of the young people is especially commendable. Among the sooists are Harry Marshal, as Frederick; Azel Barney as Richard, the pirate chief; Harry Hirshheimer, as the major general; Donald Clarke, as Samuel, lieutenant of the pirates; Sleanor Schweizer, as Ruth, a piratical maid of all work; Winifred Forbes, Jessie Callaway, Helen Burke and Leona Hussa as General Stanley's daughters. These clever people are supported by a chorus of fifty voices, thirty girls and twenty boys. Under the direction of Miss McLean, these people have been working constantly night after night and the result is most gratifying. Critics who have seen the efforts of the young people dod not hecitate to speak very highly of the entertainment. The undertaking is a new one in the high school but there is every reason to anticipate that it will be the most successful entertainment put on by the high school musical organization.

REALTY SLUMPS

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is barmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble. Agent, Chas. A. Beyschlag, Druggist, 503 Main St.

SISTER DIES—GIRL THEN SURRENDERS

CHICAGO, April 30.—Miss Helene Young, wanted in Los Angeles for forgery, surrendered to the police here for extradition today following the death of her invalid sister, Mrs. Laura Hall, for whom she says she forged the check.

She was arrested here March 7. Judges of the circuit court allowed her liberty until her sister's death, when they found that she was working in a restaurant to support her.

Miss Young says she used the money to bring Mrs. Hall to Chicago for treatment. She is being held for the Los Angeles authorities.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away

La Crosse women know how the aches and pains that often come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, are frequent indications of weak kidneys and should be checked in time. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. They attack kidney diseases by striking at the cause. Here's proof of their merit in a La Crosse woman's words:

Mrs. Anna N. Hoff, 1307 Winnebago St., La Crosse, Wis., says: "I had hard, dull backaches, with pains in kidneys and through my hips and sides. The pains were so severe at times that I couldn't stand up. The trouble was brought on by overwork. A lady-friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I began using them. I was cured of all the ailments. Should I ever need any kidney medicine again, I would certainly use Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

PLAN GREAT CONCERT

SOCIETY IS SUPPORTING THE EVENT AND THE "S. R. O." SIGN WILL SURELY BE OUT

The Philharmonic orchestra is about ready for its last rehearsal and the biggest house since James A. Herne played here in "Shore Acres" is now guaranteed. Suggestion has already been made for an extra engagement at one of the theaters, but there is nothing definite and the officers are not particularly in favor of it. Seats are now on sale at the La Crosse theater advance office These seats may be reserved Monday, May 4th.

The program will be short and interesting, and explanatory notes on the program sheet will mention special features that the audience should observe. One of these numbers is the approach of a Scotch regiment. What the approach of these regiments has meant is an old story to those familiar with history, and particularly Kipling's stories of India.

The humorous number is by Hayden. The Surprise Symphony it is called. The story goes that Hayden was conducting personally and observing some of his royal audience fall asleep, gave the baton signal for a crash of drums. Those who go to sleep May 6th will appreciate the effect immensely.

While Ralph Toland has appeared in private recitals and is well known among musicians and lovers of good music, this will be his first appearance in the La Crosse theater and those who have heard him promise that his work will be the big individual feature of the concert. His first song will be "Hear Ye Me, Ye Winds and Waves," from Julius Caesar by Handel. Other numbers are the "Toreador," from Carmen, "Danny Deever,' one of the most dramatic things ever written, and a beautiful fairy song by Cooleridge Taylor, the gifted negro whose songs have sounded a keynote in the world's music.

A really delightful time is expected. La Crosse is loyal to its own talent and it is hoped that this concert will launch a real movement that will bring into harmony all musicians and lovers of music, professionals and amateurs. There is no reason why La Crosse cannot have an orchestra of seventy pieces supplemented by a splendid choral society.

Use Good English

Poor English is a Luxury Which None But the Rich Can Afford And Even They Have Little Use For it.

(This is Lesson IV in a series of short, simple lessons in English, by C. R. Rounds, Inspector of English, Wisconsin State Normal Schools.)

WE, YOU, THEY, ARE, WERE.

These words go together. They are all plural forms. You is a troublesome word, for it may mean one or more than one, though it alwals should be followed oy a plural verb. This is particularly difficult when someone surprises you by saying: I was there. You may naturally reply: Was you? This is WRONG. You should say: Were you? You will need to be very careful with all these words, particularly with the past tense, were, in questions. Your ear may mislead you at first. Train it by repeating these forms until they sound right and natural to you:

"Were you all ready when we were"

"We were there before you were."

"Were you?"

"Certainly, we were."

"You were a rascal not to let us know you were going. They were there ahead of us and they were teasing us all evening."

"Were they?"

Of course the plural verb should be used with plural nouns: Were the other boys there? Were the men hurt? Where were you all the time while the men were hunting?

MRS. WILSON AND LADIES OF CABINET HELP RED CROSS

First Lady of Land Aids in Collecting Supplies Needed at the Front

PRIVATES IN ARMY OF ASSISTANCE

All Working Under Orders of Miss Mabel Boardman, Head of Red Cross

COUNSELLORS OF THEIR HUSBANDS

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Bryan Are Confidantes and Advisers of Leaders

By BOND P. GEDDES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 30. — The Mexican war is bringing to light a new generation of Joans of Arc—but of the new "feminist" variety.

Headed by the first lady of the land, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wives of cabinet members and army officers are the "Joans" today—leading bands of mercy, however, rather than columns of soldiers. Aid for the wounded, sick and destitute noncombatants of present hostilities is their mission.

President's Wife Leads

Among the first volunteers for Red Cross service was Mrs. Wilson. Others were Mrs. Bryan, wife of the cabinet premier; Mrs. Garrison, wife of the war secretary, and Mrs. Daniels, wife of the navy's head. The McAdoo and Burleson daughters are other enlistments. All are "playing private." They hold no offices, no titles, wear no gold lace, but merely in the ranks of the women's army striving to mitigate the horrors of war.

Collection of hospital supplies, food, clothing and money for the Red Cross work is the special detail of the feminine army of mercy.

Collect Supplies

Mrs. Breckenridge, wife of the assistant secretary of war, and Mrs. William Crozier, wife of General Crozier, chief of ordinance are the non-commissioned officers. Miss Mabel Boardman, head of the Red Cross, is their general. The cabinet women are members of the supply committee of the local Red Cross chapter. After collecting supplies they will have charge of distribution to various Red Cross and army hospitals and refugee and detention camps.

Many contributions have already been received by the cabinet women. They attend semi-weekly committee meetings. If war is declared they doubtless will see real war service, although far removed from the battle grounds.

Advisers of Husbands

As counsellors the cabinet women are also active and powerful. Mrs. Wilson is known to be the close confidante of her husband even in many important political affairs.

Mrs. Bryan is also reported to have given much assistance to the secretary of state. She was one of the chief political lieutenants in the last campaign. She was constantly in the office during the national convention fight. Another small but not unimportant part, Mrs. Bryan has played has been to put up lunches for her husband to carry to his office since the Mexican situation became acute. Her voice has also answered many telephone calls in the dead of night at the Bryan home, indicating she had been on the job at all hours.

Drop Social Whirl

Except for the plans for Miss Eleanor Wilson's wedding, Mrs. Wilson would have had time to take a more active part in Red Cross affairs, of which organization her husband is the titular head. But all members of the cabinet circles are sweeping aside pink teas, receptions and dinners for the serious work of war so far as they can aid.

ONLY ARRIVAL OF FEDERAL TROOPS PREVENTS FIGHT

of the carnage of Wednesday. The principal blood-letting was at Forbes and this tragedy was characterized by many as the strikers' revenge for the destruction of their tent colony there last winter. Several months ago, an armored automobile dashed into Forbes and opened fire on the colony. Later came soldiers and all the tents were destroyed by order of Adjutant General Chase. Since then the place has been without strikers.

According to Trinidad advices, the Forbes attack lasted four hours, 200 strikers attacking and Superintendent Nichols and forty mine guards and strike breakers defending the place. Late Tuesday night, the strikers left "General" John Brown's strike camp near Trinidad and marched to Forbes. They occupied the hills about the camp and attacked soon after daylight. The defenders sprang to the shelter of mine buildings and to a machine gun mounted above the superintendent's office.

Machine Gun Effective

For half an hour the firing continued, the defenders doing effective work with their machine gun. Then it became leaded, removing the principal means of defense. For three hours more the men in the camp stood their ground until every building in the place had been riddled. Then they fled, leaving six of their number dead in the camp. In the hills outside of Forbes three corpses of strikers were located during the night. One of these was lodged in a tree, the victim having been slain as he was attempting to pick off the defenders with a high power rifle.

The strikers burned the mine buildings and then returned to their camp.

The fighting at Walsenburg, where five persons are numbered among the slain was even more spectacular. The dead include Major P. C. Lester of the hospital corps, two unidentified strikers; Henry Floyd and George Bock. Private O. L. Wilmuth, Private Glen Miller and Lieut. Scott were wounded.

Lester was attending Private Miller, who had been wounded, when he was shot through the chest and died on the field.

Fight 56 Hours

The fighting continued through the afternoon and until 9 p. m., when a truce was arranged and the troops on the ridge were withdrawn by Col. Verdeckburg. This ended fifty-six hours of almost continuous fighting at Walsenburg.

According to Walsenburg dispatches the strikers on the ridge were commanded by Donald MacGregor, a former Denver and Chicago newspaperman.

Regulars Neutral

TRINIDAD, Col., April 30.—"The federal troops will be absolutely neutral. We will make no distinction whatever between strikers and mine guards and militiamen."

This was the first announcement of Major W. A. Holbrook, U. S. A., when he reached here early today at the head of the second squadron, Fifth U. S. cavalry, destined for duty in the southern Colorado strike zone.

The regulars, 440 strong, did not detrain until afternoon, but when they arrived at 8 a. m. they leaned from the car windows and chatted with strikers who stood in the rain on the station platform.

DAVIS STORY IS SHARPLY DENIED

Colored People Never Turned Down Plan to Hold Banquet for Booker T. Washington

An outburst of resentment and denials among the colored citizens of La Crosse, following a statement that Joseph Davis, the colored man who was a guest at the Booker T. Washington dinner, had said a plan of the colored people to give a banquet for the Tuskegee scholar had failed because of unwillingness of those consulted to meet the expense of the banquet, was followed today by an emphatic denial by Mr. Davis that he had ever made the statement.

The purported assertion of Mr. Davis was made upon what seemed good authority, but a thorough investigation by a reporter utterly fails to trace it to Davis, whose denial seems well substantiated.

In an interview this morning, Mr. Davis said:

"Nobody refused to contribute. Mr. Washington is looked up to as a leader by the colored people, and while some of the better off might have had to pay more than others, I believe every colored man in La Crosse would have wished to help. The idea of the dinner was dropped because Mr. Washington's stay was short, and when it was learned that another banquet was to be given it looked like there was not time enough for another dinner. I am not apologizing, for I never have criticised the attitude of the colored people. I simply want it understood that I have been misquoted. Those I asked to help readily agreed. The whole row is the result of a misunderstanding. I want every colored man to have a square deal, and I want them to give me a square deal and not take up untrue stories against me. I want to have this printed, and to send a copy of it to Mr. Washington so he will know the truth about it."

ARMY TO REPLACE NAVY LATE TODAY

Fighting Fifth Will Relieve the Marines of Control of Vera Cruz

BY BERNARD RUCKER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

VERA CRUZ, April 30.—This was a great day for the men of the "Fighting Fifth." They were to take leave of their transports, march into Vera Cruz and formally rellieve the naval forces of the control of the city over which the American flag now flies.

VERA CRUZ, April 30.—Brigadier General Frederick Funston, commanding the Fifth brigade, today occupied the quarters formerly in the possession of General Maas, Huerta's military governor of Vera Cruz, who fled at the approach of the American marines and bluejackets. General Funston will make the former Mexican stronghold his headquarters.

The regiments comprising General Funston's command began to leave the transports at 7:30 a. m. today.

The formal ceremony of turning over the city to Brigadier General Funston was to take place at two o'clock this afternoon. With colors unfuried and bands playing, detachments of marines, blue jackets and men of the Fifth brigade will be drawn up in the plaza where Rear Admiral Fletcher and General Funston will meet for the ceremonies incident to the change in command. The bluejackets will then be marched to the water front, where they will board their whaleboats and return to the warships in the harbor.

The quartermaster's department has everything in readiness for the landing of the infantry and artillery forces.

With the ceremonies this afternoon the firing of the customary salutes and the withdrawal of the bluejackets, the work of the navy ashore will be completed. It developed today that Mexican snipers who were driven from the city are now terrorizing farmers and gardeners. The farmers have been threatened with death, it is said, if they furnished the "gringo" invaders with food. As a result there has been a shortage of farm products. To meet this situation, General Funston is said to have asked permission of the war department to extend the American lines about twenty miles from Vera Cruz in order to protect the farmers.

The first American military hospital was established here today in charge of Surgeon Major A. W. Williams. The ice plant also resumed operation for the first time since the American occupation.

The heartiest appreciation is shown here, especially by high officials for the excellent work of Sir Lionel Carden, British ambassador to Mexico City, and Admiral Cradock in obtaining the release of Americans held in the capital and other interior cities. Another refugee train from the capital arrived late yesterday. There were thirty Americans and several Germans and Englishmen aboard.

All refugees here are being plied with questions as to their knowledge of reports that Dictator Huerta is preparing to flee Mexico. Reports here declare Huerta has several million dollars deposited in Belgian or Paris banks and has made all preparations for fight to the west coast, where he pans to board a vessel.

Vera Cruz presented an animated scene today. With troops in heavy marching order tramping to their positions, marines and bluejackets retiring from the outposts outside the city and marching toward the plaza and American, English and German refugees mingling in the streets with the Mexicans, the entire city stirred with activity. Machine guns and field pieces belonging to the naval forces were hauled through the streets to be returned to the warships. Then came the artillery to take up the positions being vacated by the bluejackets.

Reports from the hospital ship Solace today declare that all of the marines and bluejackets wounded in the fighting here last week are now convalescent. The dead will be carried back to the United States aboard the Celtic.

NEW YORK'S LATEST LOVE BALLAD

Popular Eastern Song Which Has Just Reached This City

A new song, somewhat out of the ordinary, in which romance forms the subject, is the latest New York sensation in popular music. It is a semi-love ballad, called "In the Valley of the Moon," and is replete with many pretty strains. Following is an extract of the chorus clipped from a copy of the music just received:

The entire song is written in only one octave, with no high notes, aimed, evidently, to fit any voice. An interesting feature of the composition is that there is no tango or "ragtime" in its construction, but sentimental episodes that appeal to refined women; in other words, a parlor or home ballad.

The song is arranged for soprano and contralto voices and quartettes and is also out as a hesitation waltz. The song is the most pronounced hit New York has had in many years.

ENVOYS READY TO MAKE PROPOSITION

Expect Neither Side Will Agree to Suggestions but They Are Prepared for Changes

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 30. — The Mexican mediators—the ambassadors of Argentine, Brazil and Chile—were today ready to reduce to writing their initial proposals designed to restore peace between Mexico and the United States and between the warring Mexican factions. The nature of these proposals will be carefully guarded until submitted and the answer returned. It is the hope of the mediators that some of the suggestions will be approved and that from counter-suggestions can be worked out a general plan for agreement.

Secretary of State Bryan, the only official of this government fully cognizant with what is going on, refused again today to say what he has told the mediators. From a high diplomatic source, close to the secretary, it was learned, however, that the position of the United States was substantially as follows:

"TheUnited States desires peace for all times in Mexico. It desires that peace and prosperity shall be restored to that republic by the Mexicans themselves. The United States is big enough, powerful enough and generous enough to insist on no humiliating concessions. It can never recognize Huerta or any government of which he is an important part. But it will aid the mediating powers in putting into effect a plan of government, commission or individual, that can conduct Mexican affairs pending arrangement of an election plan whereby a new Mexican congress, representative of all Mexico and a president and vice president having the confidence of the Mexican people, can be elected.

"The United States must keep its armed forces massed for action to prevent outrages against Americans and other foreigners and their property. It cannot withdraw its ships and the troops on the mere promise that order is to be maintained. There must be some sort of substantial guarantee. There must be outlined a drastic plan of action by the ad interim government."

Carranza already has an envoy enroute to this city to represent him before the mediators. The United States acts through the secretary of state and Huerta through the Spanish ambassador. Carranza is sending to this city Rafael Zusaran Capmany, the secretary of the interior of Carranza's provisional cabinet.

GRIEVANCE MEN TO CALL ON HIGGINS

Attempt Will Be Made This Afternoon to Settle Gas and Electric Company Strike

A grievance committee of the striking coal passers and stokers of the La Crosse Gas & Electric company will meet General Manager Higgins at 4 o'clock this afternoon in an effort to adjust their differences.

Despite Manager Higgins' denial yesterday that a strike existed, twelve of the men have been on strike for three days.

The grievance committee consists of John Rae, organizer of the Trades and Labor council, John Webber, president of local No. 317 of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, and two of the striking stokers.

The strike resulted from Manager Higgins' refusal of a request that an additional stoker be provided for each shift. The men say that the manager said he would do so, but that it would necesitate a cut in wages. This the men declined to accept.

Position of Strikers

In a statement today the spokesman of the strikers said:

"Four men are now required to do the same work, in fact more work than seven men were doing last summer. There are three eight-hour shifts, each now manned by a coal passer and three stokers. Last summer there were five stokers and a coal passer to each shift. Where last summer the seven men handled about 2,200 pounds an hour, the four men now handle from 2,800 to 3,000 pounds an hour. The work is too hard, and when the hot period comes, it will be intolerable.

"The company is now operating with a picked up force including office help and is using two men to the shift more than they gave us when the strike was called."

Manager Higgins says the men are not overworked, and up to the present time has declined to offer any concessions excepting that involving a cut in wages. The men are firm in their position that the strike can be settled only by their request being granted.

Higgins Makes Statement

This afternoon Manager Higgins issued the following statement:

"Some of our men at the gas works are apparently not satisfied with their work, although the present company has always accorded the men every courtesy possible, having spent thousands of dollars in the past year to improve their working conditions, including a flat increase of 10 per cent in their wages on December 1 of last year.

"We find labor plentiful and the gas works is now operating under normal conditions, with full crews.

"There has been no interruption whatsoever in the gas supply nor will there be in the future."

AUTO PLUNGES OFF ROAD KILLING ONE AND INJURING ONE

Then the police auto arrived and the others were dragged from beneath.

"While at work on the car the gas lights were burning and I scented gasoline. I found the tank to be leaking and the ground within a few inches of the lights saturated with gasoline. I blew out the lights. Had they burned but a few minutes more there is no doubt but that the gasoline would have become ignited and the entire car, with the men beneath, burned to death.

VINCENT ASTOR IS QUIETLY MARRIED

Weds Helen Dinsmore Huntington at Her Home at Noon Today

STAATSBURG, N. Y., April 30.—Vincent Astor, son of the late John Jacob Astor, who perished on the Titanic, and the wealthiest young man in the country, and Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, were married here today at Hopeland, the home of the bride's parents. The wedding ceremony was completed at 12:40.

Only 70 Guests

With only about 70 guests in attendance the wedding was very simple. This was necessary owing to the condition of the bridegroom, whose physicians had warned him against excitement of an elaborate wedding. Fifteen of the guests arrived from New York on a special car attached to one of the regular trains about an hour before the ceremony was performed.

An orchestra of twenty pieces furnished the music incident to the wedding. The wedding march from Lohengrin was rendered for the bridal procession.

New Attendants

The only attendants chosen for Miss Huntington were Alice Muriel Astor and Margaret Dows, daughter of Mrs. Tracy Dows, whose home is near Hopeland house, and her sister, Miss Alice Huntington. The two former were to act as flower girls and the bride's sister as maid of honor.

Herman Oelrichs, boyhood chum of Vincent Astor, was best man. There were no ushers.

The bridal gown was of white tulle of simple design, with a train of white satin and wedding lace that was worn by the bride's paternal grandmother and again by her mother, who was married at St. Margaret's church in 1882. The bride wore a priceless pearl necklace, the gift of the bridegroom. It is said to be the finest set of pearls ever strung.

Plans for the honeymoon were not announced. It had been planned for the couple to go on board the palatial Astor yacht Noma immediately following the ceremony and leave for an extended tour of European ports. Owing to Astor's health, however, it was believed this trip would have to be postponed and that the couple would go direct to Ferncliffe, the Astor estate, a few miles away.

Noma Ready for Sea

The Noma today lay off shore with her crew of forty-five ready for weighing anchor instantly. She has twenty tons of provisions on board.

Astor's trip down stairs to be married today was only his fourth since he was stricken ten days ago at the home of his fiance. It was admitted today that he still is a bit "wobbly," due to the enervating effect of a lung abscess.

The bridegroom is 21 and the bride 20. Astor's personal fortune is estimated at from $75,000,000 to $85,000,000. His bride's father is a millionaire and the bride is said to have more than a million in her own right.

Big Bridal Gift Customary

It was supposed that the usual Astor custom of settling from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 outright on the bride as an ante-nuptial gift was followed by Vincent.

Astor and his bride have known each other and played together since they were small children.

MRS. ALEXANDER GOES TO REWARD

Following an illness of more than two years with Bright's disease, Mrs. Augusta A. Alexander, wife of John Alexander, died last night at a local hospital. Mrs. Alexander had been a patient at the hospital for the last five months. She was born in Germany, October 28, 1858, coming to this country with her parents when a child, her parents settling in Chipmunk Coulee. She was married 38 years ago to Mr. Alexander. For the last year Mr. and Mrs. Alexander have made their home with Mrs. Jas. Holy, a daughter, living at 2146 Market street.

Besides her husband, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Reinhold Seiler and Mrs. James Holy of La Crosse, three brothers, Herman Beier of Goose Island; Charles Beier of Coon Valley, and William Beier of St. Joseph's Ridge, and two sisters, Mrs. Lena Marshall of La Crosse and Mrs. August Risto of Stoddard, Wis.

ENDED HOSTILITIES WITH ACCEPTANCE

No Request for Cessation of War Made to United States by Envoys

BY BOND P. GEDDES
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 30. — The United States has not received any request from the A. B. C. mediators for an armistice. Ambassador Da Gama did not discuss any armistice with Secretary of State Bryan yesterday. It was not until today, when the ambassador called up Soliciter Lansing of the state department, that this government formally told the envoys that it naturally assumed, and has assumed since the mediation plan was accepted, that all hostilities would be halted during the mediation.

This was made clear today by Secretary of State Bryan. The secretary emphatically denied any request for armistice had been made by the envoys. He confirmed United Press dispatches of the last few days that the United States immediately on acceptance of the mediation plan, determined to maintain the present status quo in its military and naval operations except in case of an attack on American troops or a massacre.

The mediators were considering the armistice plan today and were expected to take steps to obtain tentative if not open consent from Huerta and Carranza to such a plan. Bryan said the state department had no information on Huerta's or Carranza's attitude on an armistice. The reported objections of the constitutionalist leader loomed up today as the most serious obstacle to temporary peace in Mexico.

COP AND WOMAN TO PAY FOR HORSE

Patrolman Mike Britton exceeded his authority as a policeman when he shot a horse belonging to Ed Wiskirchen and must pay $20 damages, according to the decision of Judge Kleeber returned late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Andrew Falk, who reported to the police station that the horse was suffering from an incurable disease and should be shot to relieve its pain, must also pay $20. Judge Kleeber held that the horse was worth $40.

The defendants in the action today declared that they will appeal the case, but thus far no action has been taken in that direction. The action against Thomas McDonough, desk sergeant, was dismissed, the evidence showing that he had merely issued orders for an investigation.

TEAMSTERS WANT MORE CITY MONEY

Representatives of the local teamsters' union, headed by Organizer John Rae, appeared before Mayor Sorensen this morning and announced that unless the common council, at next month's meeting, agrees to raise their pay from forty-five to fifty cents an hour they will strike.

The city uses from fifteen to twenty teams a day, and Fred Schnell, president of the board of public works, says that their request for an increase is fair.

C. F. Callaway Millinery Establishment Beautifully Housed in New Store

What is conceded by many to be the most elaborately furnished millinery store in the city was formally opened to the public yesterday by Charles F. Callaway at 421 Main street. The establishment will be known as the Callaway Millinery parlors. Mr. Callaway is well known to La Crosse people as the owner and manager of the millinery department of the Fashion Shop.

With the purpose of making it the finest in the city, no expense was spared in the furnishing of the store. The salesroom is furnished with eight pieces of solid mahogany furniture, besides twelve solid mahogany hat pedestals. The interior is finished in mahogany stain, with 119 square feet of mirror, including six mirrors 26 by 48 inches and one large mirror five by ten feet in dimensions and 32 feet of mirror backed showcases.

The show window is fitted in green plush and is mirror lined, with gold bronze finish. The lighting is effected by Pope automobile reflectors.

On the day of opening, a beautiful bouquet of American beauty roses graced the room, the gift of a friend in Chicago.

FOR UNSIGHTLY COMPLEXIONS USE RESINOL

Pimples and blackheads disappear, unsightly complexions become clean, clear, and velvety, and hair health and beauty are promoted by the regular use of Resinol Soap and an occasional application of Resinol Ointment. These soothing, healing preparations do their work easily, quickly and at little cost, when even the most expensive cosmetics and complicated beauty treatments fail.

Resinol is not an experiment. It is a doctor's prescription which proved so wonderfully successful for skin troubles that it has been used by other doctors all over the country for nineteen years. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment (50c. and $1.00), and Resinol Soap (25c.); but for trial size, free, write to Dept. KK, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. SIGNORITA EULALIE WILL GIVE THRILLS

Daughter of Long Line of Athletes Will Appear at Minstrels, Says Press Agent

(By the Press Agent)

It takes something thrilling to amuse and entertain the American audience of today—but when dainty, daring, death-defying Signorita Eulalie Montmorenzy smilingly looks death in the face in her aerial exhibition, the bravest hearted man in the audience holds his breath until the little Signorita is safely through.

Signorita Eulalie comes of a family of noted athletes, her mother and grandmother before her, being celebrated wire performers—but Eulalie is even more daring than any of her family.

She has been playing in Madison Square garden for 180 nights the past winter—having the 1914 record for continuous performances and as this is her first engagement west of Chicago, she'll be greeted with a crowded house. Signorita Montmorenzy goes from here to Los Angeles where she will work for the "movies" for a short engagement.

The fanciest, pranciest promenade song seen in La Crosse this season will be the "Lovely Day for a Walk" sung by the classy Darktown Sextette.

This number could go on "Big Time" on the vaudeville circuit tomorrow if they would consent, but they have positively refused any engagements out of La Crosse and will remain here during the summer.

The Darktown Minstrels are given under the auspices of the Universalist church ladies and every one who has witnessed a rehearsal are loud in praise of the show. The jokes are all new and funny and most of them of a local color which is the making of a good minstrels. Reserved seats on sale at the La Crosse Candy and Flower store, Opera house block, on Saturday morning. Don't miss the best show of the season. The Belles of Darktown.

RESIGNS UNDER FIRE

PRESIDENT OF MINERS' UNION DISTRICT NO. 14 QUITS WHEN CHARGED WITH ACCEPTING OPERATORS' BRIBES

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 30.—Following a day of tumult at the convention of the United Mine Workers of America, district No. 14, Alexander Howat late yesterday afternoon resigned as president of the district. Howat's action came after John P. White, national president of the union, had reported to the convention the result of an investigation of charges against Howat and Fred Holt, secretary of the Oklahoma-Arkansas district No. 21, of accepting more than $20,000 from the operators for making favorable scale contracts.

Howat denied all the charges against him. Action on his resignation was deferred until today.

The resignation is to take effect with the close of this week.

The convention adopted a resolution asking President White to wire President Wilson a request to make an investigation of the Colorado strike situation, and requesting White, if President Wilson should refuse, to begin a movement for a complete strike of the union miners of the country.

WILLIE HOPPE WINS NEW CHAMPIONSHIP

Billiard Wizard Holds All Titles in Balk Line; Defeats Demarest in 14.1 Game

NEW YORK, April 30.—By defeating Cal Demarest of Chicago, 400 to 196, in the final game last night of the world's professional championship tournament at 14.1 balk line billiards, Willie Hoppe became a triple champion, holding title to each of the three styles of balk line play.

Won All Seven

The victory gives Hoppe the silver trophy for the 14.1 game and, in addition, 40 per cent of the $3,000 cash prize, entrance fees and gate receipts. Hoppe won all seven of his matches and Demarest met with his only defeat last night.

Hoppe made 145 in his fourth, followed with 56 in his next turn, while 61 in his ninth gave him a lead of nearly 200 points over Demarest, who had gathered 134 in his first five innings. Score:

Hoppe—2, 9, 28, 56, 2, 23, 61, 0, 0, 35, 0, 11, 3. Total, 400; average, 26 10-15; righ runs, 145, 61, 56.

Demarest—0, 30, 4, 24, 66, 0,1,14, 4, 0, 1, 0, 0, 21, 21. Total, 196; average, 13 1-15; high runs, 66, 34, 30.

AMATEURS MAKING BASEBALL RECORDS

NEW YORK, April 30.—Two no-hit, no-run games; one one-hit, no-run game; five shut-outs. That was yesterday's baseball record among college and high school teams and the four larger baseball leagues.

On Fordham field, Robert Johnson—no relation to Walter—of Ursinus college, puzzled Fordham for nine innings. He hasn't been hit safely yet. Only two men reached second base. Only four of his shoots were knocked beyond the diamond, three flies to the Fordham and one to the left fielder. Fourteen batters fanned.

As remarkable a record was made at Stamford, Conn., by Carl Edgren of South Bend, Ind., who pitched Stamford preparatory school to a no-hit, no-run victory against Greenwich high school. Edgren struck out sixteen men. He is 18 years old.

At New Haven, Tyson of Georgetown university let Yale down with one hit. Errors behind Tyson kept him from a shut-out.

CALEDONIA MAN PLAYS STAR GAME

CHICAGO, April 30. — Bunching their twelve hits to good advantage the University of Chicago baseball team won from Minnesota Tuesday afternoon, 5 to 2. Rohn, who pitched for the Gophers, was hit safely eleven times, once for a two bagger and later for a triple.

Leo Persch played a star game for the Gophers. He scored one of their two runs after he had poled out a double in the sixth. He played a brilliant game in the field, accepting nine chances without a skip.

The Maroons cinched things in the first two innings and were never headed. Des Jardiens, who held Minnesota to seven hits, made a three base hit off Rohn.

"FRESH" WINS WATER MEET AT MADISON

TECHNICALITY KILLS PRIZE FIGHT BILL

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 30.—A discrepancy of one word in the anti-prize fight initiative petition filed at the secretary of state's office, and containing a total of 34,349 signatures, will keep the measure off the 1914 ballot, unless supplemental names are filed before August 1. Two petitions circulated were similar in every respect except that in the enacting clause the word "acts" in one was substituted instead of "who."

The attorney general has ruled that the changing of the word divides the petition into two separate measures, neither of which carried the 31,000 signatures required.

WOMAN BANK OFFICIAL

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 30.—The fifth annual convention of the Kansas State Bankers' convention closed on the Kansas side late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. S. Alice Holdeman, president of the Girard State bank, and a sister of Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago, was unanimously elected vice president from the third congressional district. Mrs. Holdeman has been for years the only woman bank president in Kansas.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

BY HAL SHERIDAN

With "Babe" Adams in the box, the Pirate crew handed the Cubs a row of ciphers yesterday, winning the third straight game at Chicago, 7 to 0.

Scampering about with youthful dexterity, Honus Wagner gathered in seven chances in the vicinity of short, bingled twice, and made one marker—enough to have won.

The Senators came right back at the Athletics, featuring a triple that helped Washington to win, six to four.

The volplaning White Sox took their fifth straight licking—the second from Detroit, after Cicotte had pitched a wonderful game for ten innings.

But Cicotte's overthrow to second in the eleventh frame allowed Moriarity to take third and come in on Dubuc's high fly to right, giving the Tigers the winning tally.

Jimmy Walsh's home run slam into the right field bleachers, combined with Fisher's fadeaways against the Red Sox, gave Chance's men the game and a tighter grip on the second rung of the American ladder.

Profiting by the wildness of the Dodger slabmen, the Phillies nosed nosed Brooklyn out of second place in the National, six to two.

Cravath's single off Reulbach in the seventh scored two runs and clinched the game.

The S'lou Feds kept right on with their winning streak, this time Buffalo being the victim. Brown's men came up from behind in the twelfth, after Buffalo had scored, winning 6 to 5.

Meanwhile, Joe Tinker trotted out a new one, Maximilian Patrick Fisk, who held the Brooklyn Feds to two hits, both singles, in separate innings.

The Chifeds concentrated their efforts in the fifth and tallied two runs, just enough to win.

The boards are billed for a complete three ring show today.

Thatched Huts Are of the Past.

The disappearance of the picturesque roofs of Samoan huts is attributed to the increasing wealth of the natives and the partial destruction by insects of the wild sugar cane used for thatch. Corrugated iron is taking the place of the old material.

"NATIONAL HERO SERIES" NO. 2

GARIBALDI—ITALIA'S GREAT PATRIOT

IN the cause of Personal and National Liberty this modern Rienzi of sunny Italy would have gladly laid down his life. It inspired him to deeds of immortal grandeur, of superb valor and of boundless suffering. Garibaldi would not have legislative tyranny of any kind enter into his own private life any more than will our millions of liberty-loving Italian citizens. His flaming soul scorned any legislation which would prohibit ALL because ONE man out of thousands imbibes in gluttonous quantities. He knew that the light wines of Italy and the barley brews of Germany are beneficial to humanity.

Upon an old Germanic basis 57 years ago Anheuser-Busch, brewers of Budweiser, established their brand. The Constitution of the United States is the sole authority upon which they launched their business in America. Every day of these 57 years has been devoted to the brewing of an honest Barley-malt and Saazer Hop brew—the kind that spells Temperance throughout the world. Seven thousand, five hundred people are daily required to keep pace with the public demand for Budweiser. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles. ANHEUSER-BUSCH · ST. LOUIS

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, April 30.—Support of the late futures by shorts offset the continued favorable crop reports and low cable today and kept the grain market fairly steady, despite early liquidations that threatened to weaken it.

The opinion that much more rain in the United States wheat belts might cease to benefit the crops may have had something to do with the fair buying demand that helped uphold all prospects.

May wheat opened off ¼c and after shading substantially in the early trading recovered. July opened off ⅛c, but regained it during considerable fluctuating.

May corn lost ⅛c at the opening but regained it. July opened unchanged and climbed ½c during the morning.

Oats opened off ⅛c. The early future soared a point and a half, and July ½c.

Moderate trading on a steady market left provisions practically unchanged.

The main feature of the late trading was the sharp rise of provisions, due probably to speculation and expectation of light receipts tomorrow.

Grains stiffened all along the line in the last hour.

NORMAL SCHOOL TO OBSERVE ARBOR DAY

In accordance with the national proclamation, the annual Arbor and Bird day will be celebrated at the normal school tomorrow morning with an appropriate program. May first has been, for years, the day on which the children of this nation have done honor to the feathered songsters of the forest and have in some way beautified by school grounds by planting shrubbery or trees. Mr. Bretnall will have charge of the program which will begin at 10:30. The following program will be given:

Paper—Why We Protect the Birds—Miss Ruth Palmer.

Music—Do You Know the Trees by Name?

Wake Little Birdie—Pupils of the First grade.

Recitation—Plant a Tree—Betty Dow.

Music—Spring Song.

Frog Song—Pupils of the Second grade.

Reading—Forestry—Chas. Weis.

Quotation—Trees—Helen Goetzman.

Music—Spring Song.

Squirrel Song—Pupils of the First and Second grades.

No Vacuums In the Household.

"I would like to show you our new vacuum cleaner," began the agent when the door opened. "We ain't got no vacuums to clean," snapped the hard-faced woman as she slammed the door.

A gaze into the window of a ten cent store often makes a man believe that there should be nothing like the high cost of living.

NEW HEARING ON NEW TRIAL ORDER

CHICAGO, April 30.—The United States circuit court of appeals today entered a ruling, granting a new hearing of the case of three of the accused dynamiters, convicted at Indianapolis and under penitentiary sentence, and but recently granted new trials by the circuit court of appeals. They are Olaf A. Tvietmoe, San Francisco; Richard H. Houlihan, Chicago, and William Bernhardt of Cleveland. The government objected to granting these men a new trial and as a result of the order entered today, the court will rehear the appeals on May 16.

MORE FORCES TO VERA CRUZ PORT

American Land and Navy Forces Augmented by Four Destroyers and 900 Marines

VERA CRUZ, April 30.—The American land and naval forces holding Vera Cruz were augmented yesterday when four destroyers joined the fleet in the harbor and the liner Moro Castle, pressed into service as a transport, arrived with 900 marines. An additional transport carrying troops also anchored in the harbor, but General Funston's Fifth brigade has not yet been landed.

Vera Cruz was quiet and orderly. Tuesday night, the first since the occupation of the city that Mexicans have been permitted to appear on the streets after 7:30, passed without incident. The natives have accepted the American occupation with good grace now and practically normal conditions have been restored.

No additional refugee trains arrived from Mexico City and no more are expected here. The trains from the capital are expected to go to Puerto Mexico hereafter but a train carrying Mexican refugees left here today for Tejeria ready to bring back any Americans that may be met there.

The transport Hancock left here early today for Puerto Mexico intending to take off refugees.

From the reports received here today there is good reason to believe that not a single American has lost his life in Mexico during the past two weeks. Many have been jailed, but the stories of refugees arriving here indicate that they were really imprisoned by the Mexican officials to save them from mobs of excited natives demanding their lives.

"Jack In the Pulpit's Sermon"

The following verses, written by Mrs. Florence J. Bunting and read recently before the Y. W. C. A., are published by request of members who enjoyed the reading:

On the hillside 'neath the linden
When spring's freshness fills the land,
Quietly fulfilling his mission.
See Jack-in-the-Pulpit stand.

Preaching through sunshine and shower.
At noontide and dark midnight hour,
Sermons to the old and the sad,
Sermons to the youthful, the glad.

As weary, worn and fretted.
I mused 'neath the linden tree,
On the balmy breath of the south wind
Jack wafted this sermon to me.

Art bowed down by sorrow? Take comfort:
Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth sore.
Art torn by temptation's struggle?
Think how Christ temptation bore.

Do'st fret that thy lot is humble?
That lowly lies thy bed?
Remember Christ thy Master
Had not where to lay his head.

Do'st mourn thy friends departed?
One thou hast will ne'er depart,
But the sadder be thy portion.
Closer art thou to His heart.

Hast thou wearied in well doing,
And hast no garnered sheaves?
That thou shall reap if thou faint not,
Doubt of this thy spirit grieves.

Know thou reapest not, when thou sowest
Either tares or golden grain;
But thou reapest what thou sowest
When thy harvest comes amain.

Art striving by thought and worry
To add to thy spiritual light?
Consider thee rather how Nature
Quietly adds her cubits of height.

For Nature is not a symbol
Of the spiritual and unseen,
But a wonderful working model
And its methods may be seen.

In the lilies which toil not,
Neither do they spin,
Yet doth their royal beauty
King Solomon's glory dim.

They merely stand in their places,
And spread their petals wide
To the heat, the light, the moisture
Abounding on every side.

And so grow in grace and beauty
And glorify the earth,
And their fragrance ascends like incense
To Him who gave them birth.

And if in spiritual beauty
You would grow like the lilies tall,
Spread wide your spiritual petals
To God's grace sufficient for al.

JANESVILLE OMENS BAD

30.—Farmers in this sec-
29.—Farmers in this section of Wisconsin are disturbed because two-thirds of the calves born this spring have been males. A Janesville teacher added to their discomfiture by finding a record of similar events during one of Caesar's's campaigns when great loss of life was predicted because of the number of male calves born that year.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Logansport, Ind. — "My baby was over a year old and I bloated till I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused. I told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine.

"I hope other suffering women will try your Compound. I will recommend it to all I know." — Mrs. DANIEL D. B. DAVIS, 110 Franklin St., Logansport, Ind.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter wil be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

BALFOUR ATTACKS W. S. CHURCHILL

Refers to First Lord of Admiralty as "Despised Agent and Meanest Criminal"

LONDON, April 30.—The house of commons was thrown into the wildest uproar when Arthur J. Balfour, the most brilliant speaker of the unionist forces, referred to Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, as a "despised agent and meanest criminal."

Balfour spoke in the debate on the vote of censure moved yesterday by Austen Chamberlain. During last night's session, Churchill again held out the olive branch to the opponents of home rule. It was generally believed that his suggestions carried the approval of other members of the cabinet when he invited Sir Edward Carson to endeavor to compromise the Ulster question through the adoption of the federal system.

With the remark of Balfour today members jumped to their feet, shouting cries of protest. Balfour stood his ground.

BELFAST, April 30. — Reports that attempts may be made to put Ulster under martial law were revived today when eleven warships arrived in the Belfast Lough and anchored in Bangor bay.
